“I have been invited to join the Editorial Board of AME Case Reports and head up the Section ‘Case Reports in Otolaryngology’.”

The “case report” is an exercise describing the diagnosis and/or outcome of an individual patient, and a “case series” is usually a “retrospective” reporting of a “group of patients” with the same disease or condition or who have been treated in a similar way, over a defined period of time.

The background of the entire slide is a black canvas with several golden-yellow bamboo stalks and leaves. The stalks are thick and textured, with some dark, possibly charred or aged, patches. The leaves are long, thin, and pointed, radiating from the stalks. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the golden color of the bamboo against the deep black background.
